13. As you may know, last year the state legislature passed SB 49, also known as the Parents’ Bill of Rights. Supporters say that it outlines parental rights in public education, including being informed if their child changes their name or receives mental health treatments at school, limits sexual education in kindergarten through fourth grade, and requires doctors to receive parental permission before performing medical procedures on a minor in most cases. Critics say it is discriminatory towards children and youth who are struggling with their identities, and harmful to a group of that is already vulnerable and at risk.
