Question 1: View of Bidenomics
Thinking about the economy, how well do you believe "Bidenomics" – President Biden's term for his economic policies – works for most middle-class families in your state: very well, somewhat well, not too well, or not at all?

Question 9: Biden/Harris Responsibility for Food Price Increases
The U.S. Department of Agriculture says the thrifty grocery plan – which they describe as the cost of groceries to provide a healthy diet – is now nine hundred seventy-five dollars a month for a family of four, up from six hundred seventy-five dollars a month since Joe Biden and Kamala Harris were sworn into office as President and Vice President. How much responsibility do you think the Biden/Harris administration has for this forty percent increase in basic food costs: a great deal, some, not much, or none at all?

Kamala Harris has said she supports a mandatory buyback of semiautomatic weapons, which would mean citizens who legally own these guns would be required by law to sell them to the government or be subject to civil penalties for refusing to do so. Do you support or oppose a mandatory buyback of these guns?

Question 10: Support/Oppose Mandatory Gun Buyback
Kamala Harris has said she supports a mandatory buyback of semiautomatic weapons, which would mean citizens who legally own these guns would be required by law to sell them to the government or be subject to civil penalties for refusing to do so. Do you support or oppose a mandatory buyback of these guns?

Question 12: Effect of Harris Support for Smollett
In 2019, an actor named Jussie Smollett claimed to have been viciously attacked by two white men wearing MAGA hats, saying the attack was because he is Black and gay. Then-Senator Kamala Harris called the incident a "modern day lynching," but the alleged attack was later shown to have been faked by Smollett. Does Harris' reaction before all the facts were available make you more likely to support her, less likely to support her, or do her actions in this case have no effect on your support for her?
